The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has been made defendant in a suit filed by the Hoosier Harness Company of Seymour. The allegations of the complaint are in substance as follows: That on the 7th day of November the plaintiffs delivered a box of harness to the defendant at their offices in Seymour. for shipment to Louisville, where they expected to exhibit the harness at a vehicle and harness show held there during the week beginning November 10th. Their complaint alleges that the harness was not delivered until November 12th. The plaintiff's further allege that they had gone to some trouble and expense in arranging for this display of goods, from which they expected to get some valuable advertising and new business, and as a result of the delay on the part of the railroad company in delivering said harness in time for the opening of said show, they demand $600 dam-

the Terkhorn heirs have had it re-surveyed with the result that it is now claimed to contain 129 acres. In their complaint the plaintiffs allege that their original agreement of sale to Mr. McMahan was on the basis of 133 acres at the rate of about $112 per acre, but after re-surveying it, the agreement was modified in the belief that it contained only 104 acres. They further allege that this was a mutual mistake on both the part of themselves and the defendant and they now ask that the contract be reformed and demand pay from the tional acres.

Points For the Purist Who Found Flaws In Gray's "Elegy."

CRITICISING A CRITIC.

To look for and find in masterpieces little flaws, real or imagined, is an occupation that must have its mysterious joys, otherwise, as it brings no profit, the task would not command all the time and labor that are devoted to it. nor would every such discovery be so exultingly proclaimed. This condition is based, or, rather, its repetition, by the letter in which a correspondent confessed that, having heard verbal perfection ascribed to Gray's "Elegy," be was moved carefully to examine the verses on the chance of proving this praise undeserved. And he did, he thinks, having found no less than two errors in the lines:

Their name, their years, spelt by the unlettered muse

The place of fame and elegy supply,

And many a holy text around she strews To teach the rustic moralist to die.

"Name" should be "names," this authority declares, for the reason that the stones bore not one but several names, and "many a holy text," being singular, demands "teaches" instead of "teach!"

Now, just why Gray put the word "name" in the singular and not in the plural might be made the subject of ingenious inquiry, with any one of half a dozen sufficient explanations as recompense and all inconclusive, but to see force in the diversity of village patronymics-that requires more than ingenuity; it demands perversity. As for "many a holy text," that does indeed, the grammarians say, insist that a verb in immediate sequence be singular. Even the grammarians admit. however, with innumerable writers of both verse and prose, that if the verb be in a later clause the plural idea involved in "many" can properly be allowed to govern. Would our correspondent insist that when the estima-

Franklin of Lehigh university expounds the phenomenon as well as the philosophy of twisted balls. Multitudes of "fans" who have always supposed that the baffling qualities of a straight pitched ball were due simply to its swiftness never suspected this eccentricity. Professor

> Franklin states the case in this way: Consider a very smooth ball which is moving through still water without spinning. There is certainly no more reason why the ball should jump to the right than to the left. Therefore it must continue to move straight forward. That is good logic. But such a ball is no more subject to logic than is a sharp stick. The fact is that the ball does jump sidewise and in a most irregular manuer. This may be shown by dropping a smooth marble in a jar of still water. The marble goes nearly straight for several inches and then suddenly jumps sidewise. Similarly a smooth baseball jumps sidewise irregularly as it moves through the air if the ball is not spinning. The explanation lies in the fact that a rapidly moving stream of air splits when it flows past a ball with unstable dividing lines or vortex sheets. The unstable sheet will spurt now upward, now downward. The condition is the same when the ball splits the air and is shunted in a glancing manner past the bat. The only requisite for this baffling effect is power in the pitcher's

The same expert tells us that it is not sanitary to rub each piece of china with a dish towel of doubtful cleanliness. For many years hotels have been using the steam drying method with dishes, which unfortunately is not yet available to the modern housewife. A good and inexpensive substitute is to be found in a dish drainer, which consists of a twenty inch square galvanized drain pan and a removable wire rack into which the dishes are placed and which allows them to stand upright. Campaign Afoot Will Save Wisconsin Candidate $600.

A 3,000 mile walking tour faces Henry E. Roethe, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor of Wisconsin, who is running on a platform of economy and lower taxes.

Mr. Roethe will open his pedestrian campaign about March 15. His average walking rate is thirty miles a day, but he will slow down to twenty-five so as to discuss lower taxes at country stores and tack up placards. He hopes to visit every county in the state before Aug. 15.

The candidate has limited his campaign expenses to $1,000. He figures he can save $600 by walking. He has purchased three pairs of cowhide shoes, which he thinks will last through the Enlarged Waterway Will Receive Battleships of Greater Dimensions.

Emperor William expects to steal a march on President Wilson in canal celebrations by opening the enlarged waterway connecting the Baltic and North seas probably as early as April. The work of improvement, which has cost more than the building of the original canal in 1887, will enable the passage of the largest battleships. The emperor probably will accomplish this for the first time by personally commanding the main German battle fleet through the inland waterway.

The German canal will have locks 82 feet longer, 371/2 feet broader and of 4 feet greater draft than those of Panama and will accommodate a 60,000 ton battleship should naval designers go as high as that in the future.

The new locks, which lack the imposing height of those at Panama, but are bigger in every other respect, are 1,082 feet long (Panama 1,000 feet). 1471/2 feet wide (Panama 110) and have a mean depth of 45 feet of water over

The new canal is about 60 miles long. It shortens the trip from Baltic structed between Black Head and Port | sea harbors to Hamburg by 480 miles and to London by 269 miles.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Katharine Decides.

Katharine left the field of Runnymede with John Valiant in the duncolored motor. She sat in the driver's seat beside him, while the bulldog capered, ecstatically barking, from side to side of the rear cushions.- Her father had declined the honor, remarkling that he considered a professional chauffeur a sufficient risk of his valuable life and that the Chalmers' grays were good enough for him-a decision which did not wholly displease Katha-

The car was not the smart Panhard in which she had so often spun down the avenue or along the shellroads of the north shore. It lacked those fin-de-siecle appurtenances which marked the ne plus ultra of its kind, as her observant eye recognized; but 'it ran staunch and true. The powerful hands that gripped the steering-wheel were brown with sun and wind, and the handsome face above it had a look of keenness and energy she had never surprised before. They passed many vehicles and there were few whose occupants did not greet him. In fact, as he presently remarked, it was a "Rosewood, by name. eaving of energy to keep his hat off; and he tossed the Panama into the ly, if not a refuge of genteel poverty, rear seat. They passed orchard clumps bending with young apples, boundless aisles of green, young-tasseled corn and shadowy groves that smelled of fern and sassafras, opening out into more sunlighted vistas overarched by the intense penetrable of the June sky.

John Valiant had never seemed to her so wholly good to see, with his waving hair ruffling in their flight and the westering sun shining redly on his face. Midway of this spurt he looked at her to say: "Did you ever know a more beautiful countryside? See how the pink-and-yellow of those grain fields fades into the purple of the hills. Very few painters have ever captured a tint like that. It's like raspberries crushed in curdled milk."

"I've quite lost my heart to it all," she said, her voice jolting with the speed of their course. The car slackened speed as it slid by a white-washed cabin at whose entrance sat a dusky gray-bearded figure. Valiant pointed. "Do you see him?" he asked.

Her voice held a lingering indefinable quality that was almost sadness, and for that one slender instant, she opened on him the unmasked batteries of her glorious gray eyes.

* * * * * The tournament ball at Damory Court that night was more than an event. The old mansion was an irresistible magnet. The floor of its yellow parlor was known to be of delectable hugeness. Its gardens were a legend. The whole place, moreover, was steeped in the very odor of old mystery and new romance. Cryptogamic Poisoning.

Cryptogamic poisoning is the name given to the disease which has appeared in the Jonesville neighborhood and resulted in the death of several head of horses and mules The final report is given by the state veterinarian who has completed an examination of the brain taken from the head of one of the mules that died from the strange affliction. Damaged corn is said to have been the cause of the disease. The best remedy, according to Dr. A. F. Nelson, state veterinarian, is to remove the cause which will mean a careful inspection of the corn fed to the

The Scott and Jackson Oil and Gas Company

The Scott and Jackson Oil and Gas Company has been incorporated for the purpose of continuing the oil development in Scott and Jackson Counties. If oil is struck in paying quantities, it means a big boost for the two counties and everybody in this part of Indiana. It will bring people and money to Seymour and every other town in the vicinity, and this means increased property values, increased business for the merchant, increased land values for the farmer, increased business for the professional men, increased business for the contractor. In fact, it will bring general prosperity.

No one will dispute the truth of the above statements in case we are successful in striking oil. Everybody should be sufficiently interested to take a few shares of this stock in order to help bring about a condition that means so much to the community.

True, this is not an investment, but a speculation, but everyone should be willing to help a little in order to take a chance on bettering their condition. It is not a question of whether you can afford to do but rather whether you can afford not to do so; the few dollars you invest in this will not break you in case we do not strike oil. A few dollars invested in this stock will help to bring it to a successful issue, and by so doing you will have made an honest endeavor to better your condition and the condition of the entire community.

Everyone should take a few dollars worth of this stock and help carry on this development. We cannot guarantee to strike oil, but we can guarantee honest and capable management of the affairs of the Company to the best interests of every stockholder, be he large or small stockholder. If we all pull together, it will be easy. If everybody will appoint himself a committee of one to take a small amount of stock, we can, by so doing, test out our territory, as it has never been tested before.

By deep drilling we believe our chances for success are good. Efforts have been made in this vicinity in past years, but no deep drilling has been done. Do not let the results of the past efforts discourage you in this undertaking, for we are going deeper as long as indications are favorable. Please bear in mind that if our determined efforts are successful, Seymour and neighboring towns will boom as other towns have boomed where the oil development has been a success. All it takes is determination and money to bring this undertaking to a successful issue. We have the determination; it is up to you to play your part by taking a few shares of stock, and thereby helping to carry on this development. It will be accomplished by the pooling of small interests. If you win, you win big; if you lose, you lose little because you haven't invested much. Impress this firmly upon your mind.

I will call on you personally as soon as it is possible for me to do so, and I will be pleased to answer any questions you may wish to ask, or give you any information you may desire in regard to the affairs of the Company.

I have arranged with the Republican office that subscriptions for any amount of this stock may be left in their care if it is more convenient for you and I will acknowledge its receipt promptly.

> Very truly yours, GEO. J. RIEHM, Sec'y., Seymour, Ind.
